

Writing a Winter Haiku

A haiku is a short poem which came from Japan. They are always three lines long and usually written about nature. Winter is a perfect theme for a haiku.

Look at this poem.

Sledging

Numb hands, frozen feet,
Shivery trudge to the top,
Giggling sliding down!

The first line is made up from words with 5 syllables altogether. Try clapping it out as you say the words and count the claps. The second line has 7 syllables altogether. The last line has 5 syllables again.
